Dream Interpretation Report for James Mitchell

Date of Dream: November 21, 2001

Dream Title: Driving Past Stall High School

the Dream:

I am in a car, driving down a street. It is daytime. I make a right turn onto another street. To my left is Stall High School. I look as I drive slowly by the school. The entryway, leading into the school, is curved; the curvature protrudes outward. The campus itself is very large. I look at the classroom windows, which go up several floors. Many of the windows have venetian blinds that are drawn closed. I can still see that the lights are on in the rooms; classes are in session. To my right, slightly ahead of me, there is a person riding a bicycle. I then hear someone ask me if I'm supposed to be in class. I turn around. There is a man standing behind my car, in the middle of the road. He is an older black man, with graying hair on the sides of his head; the rest of his short afro is black. Still in my car, I tell him no, that I have graduated. He says that is okay.

Now, I am in a classroom, sitting at a student desk. The same man I encountered outside in the street is the substitute teacher. A young black woman, also a student, engages him in conversation. They recognize each other from a taped show that each was a part of; the show appeared on the news recently. The man was giving advice using a psychological profiling system he created. There was a man (who also happened to be black) the profiler said couldn't be fit into any of his profiles. The profiler had to apologize to other studio audience members; he had taken so much time with this man that he ran out of time. Specifically, a set of identical twin young women. Both are dressed the same. They have large afros, which are light in color, almost matching their equally light skin complexions. I can tell the twins are biracial. They are sitting next to each other. For some reason, I feel I have seen this young woman, who is seated in the desk in front of me, somewhere before. I tell her possibly it was at church. I then say, "God is everywhere present." A blonde young woman, seated at the front of the room, turns and says to me, "Oh, let's not discuss this, shall we?"

The class starts to talk amongst themselves. A young man is trying to get my attention. I can see he's trying to talk to me; his lips are moving, but I can't hear what he is saying. I get up from my desk and go to him.

Kneeling at the front of his desk, he tells me, "I got it pierced." When I ask what exactly he is talking about, he points with his left index finger to his right ear. I then realize both his ears are pierced, and he is wearing earrings. He has dark blond hair that falls almost to his shoulders. He tells me he had to get it pierced "because he touched it." I don't understand who "he" is. I look at the earring. It is circular and white. It has a red heart on it and the name MARK engraved on it. After admiring the earrings, I return to my desk.

the Interpretation:

This dream begins addressing your current life situation. You have told me that you have recently completed an associate's program at TTC (Trident Technical College), which is significant, as graduation is mentioned in your dream. It seems you are wondering what the focus of your energies should be at this time. Driving down the street is an indication of wondering where you are going in life and what your goals are. Turning right in the dream is an indication of the direction which you are going in the future. Turning right also is an indication of taking a male approach (an intellectual, rational, logical, analytical) to life, which is a focus on work or career aspirations. In the dream, there are symbols that point toward psychology (the profiler) and communications (the taped show and the news, which is media communications); these are the two subjects that you might be trying to see if you have a desire to pursue. You may have an interest in both, but I am not sure if you want to pursue either as a career. This is explained in the dream by your driving slowly, almost like a sign of hesitation in life. This is further explained by being outside Stall High (which actually exists, and, in life, you told me you have never been). You have "stalled" on going to college in an undergraduate program of some kind. Also, the man you encounter is in the middle of the road, which symbolizes being in the middle of your journey, and means that you are not moving. It's like straddling the fence; it's a period of inactivity. The dream also touches on your spiritual work. There are spiritual lessons you need to learn at this time. It can also mean that your life at this point will be taking a more spiritual focus. The man in the middle of the road represents a guide and your own abilities as a medium/channel (he is standing in the middle of the road, which is the median). A medium/channel is a person who has the spiritual gift/ability to communicate with spirits. Telling this man you have graduated high school is saying that you are ready to take what you have learned in the spirit world into the physical (the entryway of Stall High protrudes, which can symbolize the womb). Also, high school is composed of grades 9-12, moving from being a freshman (a fresh man, or a novice) to a senior (a position of mastery). The number 9 indicates being drawn toward spiritual matters; 10 indicates God and spiritual values; 11 becoming a psychic master; and 12 is the number of spiritual fulfillment (12 disciples who would later become apostles).

There are a lot of references to the past, which can indicate past life issues and karma. The school is on the left, which is the past. The man stands behind your car, which is a position of the past. The taped show on the news represents bringing past material into the present. All of these references indicate potential past life issues you need to work on. These issues are suggesting working on your mediumship/channeling abilities. This is evidenced by the guide, the twins, and the windows that have the drawn blinds, but the lights are on. This can mean that you had these abilities in a previous life and didn't use them, which is why they are expressing themselves now. As for this life incarnation, the dream is telling you these abilities may have started to manifest during your high school days.

The specific abilities mentioned in the dream are precognition (the ability to foresee future events), clairvoyance (the ability to “see” pictures and images psychically), and clairaudience (the ability to “hear” messages psychically). The precognition is indicated by the déjà vu experience within the dream. The clairvoyance is symbolized by the windows and the information concerning the show on the TV news; the TV indicates clairvoyant ability (being open and receptive to precognitive information, as well as being able to "tell a vision").

It is the clairaudient ability the dream is instructing you to further develop. The young man trying to get your attention and talk to you indicates you have trouble hearing messages from the Other Side (he is positioned on the other side of the room). Your going to him indicates moving toward this area of learning. He also is wearing earrings and makes the reference to his right ear being pierced. Having both ears pierced and wearing earrings indicates this ability will become important in your mediumship/channeling development. The right ear, specifically, indicates this will become more active in the future. The earrings themselves are interesting. I interpret them to signify that you have a spirit guide named Mark, as well as saying this is God's "mark" on your life. I may be stretching here, but your guide's full name could be Mark Hart (the pun on heart, the symbol on the earring).

The dream indicates that you have the potential to become a teacher of mediumship/channeling. The combination of the guide being both a teacher and a psychologist may indicate teaching in the field of spiritual psychology.
